NONCUSTODIAL PARENT STATEMENT (NCPS) 2020–2021

For Undergraduate Financial Aid Applicants

Who should submit this form?
The NCPS should be submitted by the noncustodial parent for all first-time undergraduate financial aid applicants whose parents are separated, divorced, or were never married and are not living together. This includes first-year and transfer applicants to our 2020–2021 entering class and current students wishing to apply for financial aid at Washington University for the first time.

If my noncustodial parent has already provided this information on a CSS PROFILE, should I also submit the NCPS?
It is not necessary to submit both forms. Some families find it convenient to complete the CSS PROFILE in order to send their financial information to several schools at once. However, the NCPS is a shorter form with fewer questions — and it's free!

How will Washington University determine my eligibility for financial aid?
For students whose parents are divorced, separated, or were never married, the financial aid award is based on either the Family Financial Profile (FFP) or CSS PROFILE, in addition to the NCPS or CSS NCPS.

Is my information shared with others?
Financial information submitted to Student Financial Services is kept confidential. Your information will not be shared.

Where should the completed NCPS be sent?
You may submit the NCPS online at ncps.wustl.edu, or send this form to our office:
